These corflute signs will be distributed to all schools this week - please display prominently

This week AEU officers are delivering the latest Public Education Campaign corflute signs to all public schools. A sign is being provided for both the primary school building and its colocated preschool, as well as to preschools in separate locations.

Schools are asked to display the new sign prominently, preferably in a public area that visitors and members of the public access, such as a foyer or reception area, or else a site on the external wall of the school where the sign will be visible to passersbys from the street and road. These signs have also been provided to Minister Barr and Acting Chief Executive Janet Davy for display in their offices.

Support public education and our campaign by displaying your new sign in your school.

AEU POLICY REVIEW

Members will be aware that a major rewrite of AEU policies has been underway since 2008. The redrafted policies have been considered by Council as time permits at each meeting. There are still a large number of policies to be finalised and members have a part to play in completing this work.

At August Council all policies remaining will be put to Council for endorsement as a "job lot" except where there are matters of concern or debate raised by Councillors. Consequently, all Sub-Branched are reminded to review the remaining policies [available on the Latest News page of the AEU website: <http://www.aeuact.asn.au>] and ensure that your Councillor has your view to inform their participation in the discussion at August 15 Branch Council.
